

Randy Sevenish: A Lifetime of Service

Randy grew up in Rossford, Ohio, a suburb of Toledo, as the oldest of nine children in his family. He attended Rossford High School, where he served as the senior class president and captain of the varsity football, track and wrestling teams. He has been named to the Rossford High Athletic Hall of Fame.

He went on to attend Western Kentucky University on a football scholarship and ultimately finished his undergraduate studies at the University of Indianapolis and Doctor of Jurisprudence Law Degree from Indiana University School of Law.

In 1973, he fulfilled his lifelong dream of becoming a police officer, and he made the most of his opportunity by rising to the rank of Captain and SWAT Commander for the Marion County Sheriff's Department. He was assigned as Master Police Instructor at the Police Academy both for the Sheriff's Department and for the Indiana Law Enforcement Academy.

As a highly decorated law enforcement officer, Sevenish rendered aid to victims and took on bad guys. As a lawyer, he doesn't believe his job has really changed much.

"Even though I no longer kick in doors, I'm still protecting people like I did when I was a police officer, and I'm still pursuing the bad guys," says Randy, who is sometimes called the "SWAT Lawyer" by those who know him. "The difference is that, in my present work, the 'bad guys' are the people who cause injuries through their negligence and the insurance companies who try to deny rightful compensation," he says.

Randy enjoyed a Christian upbringing as a child and young man and is a lifelong practicing Catholic. He attributes this training as the basis of all of his Core Values, which demand integrity and dedication to "doing the right thing" both in his personal life as well as in his professional capacity when representing his many clients.

He is a long-time member of the Christian Legal Society and constantly strives to meet the challenges that arise when attempting to balance Christian principles and the Law. Randy has always had a deep spiritual faith, reflected in his law firm's logo, and he maintains his family as his top priority, which includes his law enforcement family.

He has been married to his wife, Regina Sevenish, Office Administrator of Sevenish Law, for more than 40 years. They have two daughters, Alyssa and Abby, and two grandsons, Orion and Wyatt.

Randy and Regina regularly attend church and are members of the Saints Francis & Clare Catholic Church in Greenwood.

"Law enforcement shaped my character," Randy says, "and from those years, I gained valuable accident investigation skills that I still employ today in seeking compensation for my clients."

INTEGRITY

Client trust, high ethical standards, strong spiritual core, doing what's "right"

REPUTATION

Professional, prepared, honest, proven, experienced, reliable, serious, driven, reduce fees when necessary

GROWTH

Offering personal, professional

TEAMWORK

Perseverance, optimism, confidence, detail-oriented

SERVICE

Equal respect to all people regardless of race, religion or social status, genuine empathy, humility

My entire adult life has been dedicated to serving others. I have a long history of helping, teaching, educating and protecting others in a variety of arenas, including injury law, law enforcement and martial arts. I served the Indianapolis public as a decorated Police Captain, police academy instructor and SWAT team Commander all while attending law school.

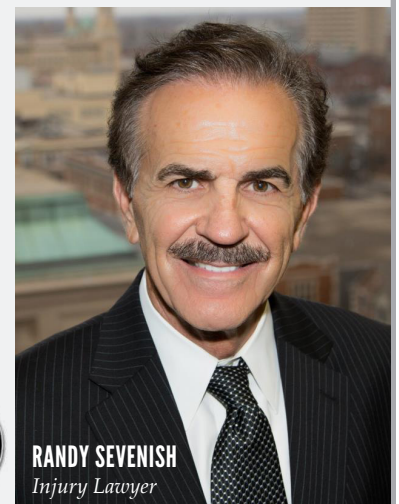

As Karate Sensei, it was my pleasure to serve by teaching self-defense and karate to hundreds of Indiana police, adults, children and the disabled – changing lives. A 6th Degree Black Belt certification qualified me to serve the city and state as Karate Commissioner for the World Police & Fire Games.

As an injury lawyer since 1985, I continue to proudly, ethically and aggressively serve the community by protecting the rights of those wrongfully injured. Serving others is "who I am" and my deep-rooted Christian faith requires me to "do the right thing" in all aspects of my life.

Having a servant's heart is why I became an Injury Lawyer.

SEVENISHLAW
INJURY LAWYERS

RANDY SEVENISH
Injury Lawyer